this book performs a swot strengths weaknesses opportunities and threats analysis to examine the current food crisis and how it relates to the use of crops for energy it analyses how energy crops may help solve humankind's environmental changes and summarises the economic and practical changes of cultivating and utilising energy crops. Two of humanity's greatest challenges are the need for more food production as well as growing demands for energy. Biofuel cultivation has been identified as a solution to growing energy use and biomass power plants offer a rare renewable energy source that requires only basic technology. In this context a dilemma arises concerning whether energy crops should be used for energy or to help remedy the food crisis. SWOT analysis allows us to organise and weigh different pros and cons against each other in terms of economics, job creation, environmental impacts, the climate change agenda and European Union (EU) directives that promote biofuels over fossil fuels. By pursuing this approach the book helps researchers and decision makers cut through the many competing arguments in connection with this complex subject.

This volume focuses on multilateralism in the 21st century and examines how and how effectively the EU delivers on its commitment to effective multilateralism, presenting results generated by Mercury, an EU research programme into multilateralism. This book addresses a central research question: does the EU deliver on its commitment to effective multilateralism? Globalisation has created powerful new incentives for states to cooperate and has generated renewed interest in multilateralism. While a large body of work exists on multilateralism as a concept, it continues to be ill-defined and poorly understood. This book sheds new light on 21st-century multilateralism by exploring conceptual approaches as well as generating innovative empirical knowledge on its practice. Research on EU external relations has increasingly focused on the concept of effective multilateralism, yet the application of this concept as a guiding principle of EU foreign policy in non-security policy areas has rarely been examined. This book explores whether the EU is pursuing effective multilateralism in specific policy areas, including trade, climate change and conflict resolution, and in distinct geographical and institutional settings, both internal to the EU and in specified regions, international organisations (IOs) and bilateral partnerships. This book offers evidence-based, actionable policy lessons from Europe's experience in promoting multilateralism. The European Union and multilateralism in the 21st century will be of interest to students and scholars of international relations international organizations and european union politics and foreign policy
